Wiedemar in Saxony.

Windhager has filed for insolvency due to the downturn in the German market over the past year and a half. The company manufactures boilers for renewable energy heating systems – in particular, it has specialised in pellet heating systems in recent years.

Its parent company based in Salzburg, Austria, has been involved in insolvency proceedings since early January 2024. A solution has now been found for Windhager in Austria, which has been acquired by a company that is part of the Austrian Best Water Technology (BWT) water treatment group.

Windhager Zentralheizung GmbH is responsible for sales and services within Germany. The provisional insolvency administrator will now hold discussions with the Austrian buyer and other companies in the industry to find an investor for the business. Mr Stemshorn said, “We will move quickly to launch the M&A process. Our goal is to facilitate an investor solution for the German Windhager company.”
