e-cargo bike provider sigo begins restructuring under its own direction

16 June 2023 · Darmstadt · Business Area: Restructuring

e-cargo bike provider sigo, which operates all across Germany, is to position itself for the future under a debtor-in-possession restructuring process. The company filed a corresponding application, and the Local Court of Darmstadt approved the provisional debtor-in-possession proceedings on 12 June 2023.

Founded in 2017, the company has a workforce of almost 40 employees. Their salaries are guaranteed for a period of three months thanks to specific substitute benefits provided under German insolvency law. The start-up continues to operate without restrictions. Its employees have been informed about the current situation.

With its inductive charging stations, sigo GmbH based in Darmstadt is one of Germany's first providers of a fully automatic e-cargo bike system. The company operates a B2B2C business model. It is working together with the housing industry and municipalities to drive forward the transition to e-mobility.

The company has developed its own cargo bikes adapted for rental for its sharing service. The high-quality bikes are inductively charged at fixed charging stations to ensure their rapid availability. Thanks to the use of an app, bike rental is not tied to any particular opening hours. The partners benefit from the full-service offering, with sigo not only providing the e-cargo bikes and app but also taking care of the installation of the charging stations, customer support, maintenance and repairs. The sharing model makes neighbourhoods more appealing, while the cargo bikes themselves contribute to urban traffic calming and climate protection.

The start-up's current financial situation has been caused by the difficult conditions in the industry relating to a number of factors, including increased construction interest rates and a significant decline in new builds in the past twelve months, which has led to lower demand. In addition, the financing situation for start-ups has recently become considerably tougher because of major interest rate hikes in the capital market. A further funding round with the company's members was not successful. Therefore, it filed an application for debtor-in-possession proceedings. This should allow for the best possible exploitation of the restructuring opportunities afforded through such.

Ongoing business operations

The company has already held good discussions with its business partners, who are supporting sigo during the debtor-in-possession proceedings. The company's business operations are continuing without any disruption. An agreement has already been reached with an existing member, who will provide the financing during the proceedings and already expressed interest in a takeover.

Mr Tobias Lochen, managing director of sigo, said, "Our
