PLUTA attorney Mr Roeger said, "We will move with great urgency over the coming days to ensure that the team can continue to fulfil its fixtures despite the ongoing provisional insolvency proceedings. If all involved pull in the same direction as us, then the home game on 4 February should go ahead as planned. I hope we can count on great support over the coming days and weeks."

As soon as the details have been clarified, the provisional insolvency administrator will provide an update on the future fixtures. There is already good news for the players. "We have checked whether the team's salaries can be guaranteed using the specific substitute benefits provided under German insolvency law, and that is indeed the case.
