others, including auditor Mr Bernd Richter and PLUTA attorneys Dr Dieter Schmid and Dr Christian Kaufmann as well as Mr Helmuth Rauscher and Dr Sebastian Knappe from acta Management AG.

The Local Court of Göppingen ordered provisional insolvency proceedings for the assets of the Allgaier companies in June 2023. The attorneys from PLUTA Rechtsanwalts GmbH have since acted as provisional insolvency administrators. The automotive supplier has continued to operate since then at all locations without any restrictions. The Allgaier Group has established itself as a partner to the international automotive industry and also develops standardised and customised solutions for the process engineering sector. The automotive supplier has a total workforce of around 1,600 people in Germany and approximately 2,000 on a global scale. The group's foreign subsidiaries are not involved in insolvency proceedings.

Automakers receiving deliveries as planned

Attorney Mr Michael Pluta said, "We have stabilised the Allgaier operations over the past two months and now find ourselves in calmer waters. Supply chains are working reliably and the automakers are receiving their deliveries as planned. Not a single assembly line had to be stopped. It is also a very positive sign that the employees feel a strong connection with the companies and are still highly motivated about their work. We are therefore positive about Allgaier's future, especially given that the products are not dependent on the combustion engine."

under German insolvency law finished in late August. From September, the employees will be paid from the insolvency estate. Already in August, the company informed the employees that the automotive supplier had secured financing for the months ahead up to late January 2024. The experts are also working on drawing up a plan for 2024 and checking the calculations.

Process of finding an investor ongoing

Meanwhile, the process of finding an investor for Allgaier is ongoing. To this end, the insolvency administrators have appointed consulting firm Ebner Stolz in Stuttgart to conduct the M&A process with support from PLUTA.

Restructuring expert Mr Fritz Zanker said, "The process of finding a new investor officially began in August. A number of investors have already reached out to us. Initial discussions are ongoing. We are not in any rush and want to achieve the best possible outcome. Our goal is to find a financially strong investor by early 2024."
