PLUTA restructuring expert Peter Roeger successfully negotiates follow-up solution for SINGER

3 April 2023 · Bayreuth · Business Area: Insolvency Administration

Insolvency administrator Mr Peter Roeger from PLUTA Rechtsanwalts GmbH has successfully completed discussions with investors in respect of SINGER INGENIEUR CONSULT GmbH. As a result, G.I.A. Planung GmbH & Co. KG based in Bayreuth has acquired the business operations of the insolvent engineering services provider from Bayreuth effective 1 April 2023. All 70 or so jobs have been saved with the agreed solution.

Mr Benjamin Steven Reiche will assume the reins of the new owner. SINGER's Bayreuth, Zwickau and Bamberg sites will be retained and further expanded through the transaction. The company offers planning services in respect of superstructure and civil works, maintenance, construction supervision and technical project management of complex building work. Its activities cover specialist areas such as architecture, building services and civil and structural engineering.

G.I.A. is part of the Allgäu-based family business Rudolf Hörmann GmbH & Co. KG headquartered in Buchloe, under which the business will operate going forward. The letters G.I.A. stand for the German words for general planners, engineers and architects. "We welcome the agreement

Business operations maintained since application filed

Attorney Mr Roeger and his colleague Mr Dino Eglinski, a business lawyer, had kept the business operating since the application was filed in February 2023. The team analysed the financial situation and held numerous discussions with business partners. Contracts were renegotiated and processes re-engineered. Those responsible also launched a structured process aimed at finding an investor. The M&A experts at INTRION Gesellschaft für Managementberatung mbH under Dr Michael Saatmann supported this process, which has now been successfully completed.

The management team under Rolf and Michael Hörmann said, "G.I.A. Planung GmbH & Co. KG will operate independently on the market. Cooperation with us will enable it to add timber construction and photovoltaics to its areas of competence. As a result of the acquisition, the engineering firm will also design wooden hybrid buildings in the future."

Many years of experience

Austria, Switzerland and Romania and employs approximately 750 people. The team has over 60 years of experience in designing and constructing agricultural and industrial buildings as well as housing. HÖRMANN has been a pioneer in photovoltaics for 20 years and has a high degree of competence in the integration of photovoltaic systems into buildings. It also has extensive expertise in constructing buildings using wood in combination with other materials. The company designs and builds wooden and wooden hybrid structures, from the initial stage to the finished building envelope and has been responsible for flagship projects, such as a bouldering gym located north of Erlangen that is currently the world's largest facility of its kind made of wood. With its wooden hybrid construction method, HÖRMANN combines the strengths of wood with steel and concrete components in a highly effective and economical way.

The Rudolf Hörmann company can offer a broad selection of building solutions through its own production facilities in Germany. 'Made in Germany' means that it produces all key building components itself. The company operates its own production lines for this, using state-of-the-art machines and the skills of experts in timber, metal and steel construction. It also has specialised departments for concrete construction and energy technology.
